

Dial back "good ol' days"

The University of Waterloo Alumni Association sent out their magazine advertising an alumni reunion. Their idea of "good ol' days" includes Radio Waterloo. In fact, not only does it include Radio Waterloo but this photo was the cover of their current magazine and features some of the initial members including Alan Gough and Jerry Cook.

These members were instrumental in getting the initial station up and running. This photo dates back to about 1971 before the station was on the FM dial. At that time Radio Waterloo did not have the CKMS call letters and was a closed circuit radio station servicing various buildings on the University of Waterloo and Wilfred Laurier Campus'. Back then, Radio Waterloo would get airtime on Grand River Cable to put out various radio programs to the community.

Homes Plus Magazine helps out the SFM Times

SFM Times Issue #1 got a good response from various members of CKMS. The SFM times was initially going to be the CKMS newsletter that people can sign up for on the station's website at soundfm.ca. In addition to being emailed out and available electronically, the SFM times will soon be available in print! Homes Plus Magazine, which is the number one home buyer magazine in the Waterloo Region, graciously donated to SFM Times organizer, DJ Steel, an outdoor newspaper box.

As soon as the paint dries the SFM Times will be available at the CKMS doorstep in print. It is estimated that 100 copies will be printed and made available. Make sure to swing on by and pick up your copy monthly!

Disaster Averted

Based on a true Story

As Detective J Steel tuned into 100.3 on the FM dial there was a slight radio fuzz that permeated the feed. Steel noticed a pattern with the radio fuzz and contacted the Nattyphysicist to see if he could run the pattern through one of his advanced algorithms to find the source of the radio impedance.

The Nattyphysicist tirelessly ran the data and calculated that the impedance was due to the outdoor heat and that the CKMS FM transmitter was overheating.

Luckily Dr. Mark had a psychedelic solution and loaded the hardware into the awaiting DJ Carmelo's Street hopped-up vehicle. Carmelo raced through the grid-locked city streets en route to Detective J Steel who was now at the station.

Meanwhile at the station as Detective J opened the tower door the face plate on the FM receiver suddenly flipped down and a count down began. "T-minus 30 minutes until disaster". Just then, Carmelo drove up in his Street hopped-up vehicle. Steel didn't waste any time ripping out the old busted hardware and started installing the new hardware. Detective J Steel finished installing the hardware just as the final minute on the receiver's faceplate ticked past.

Detective J Steel closed his eyes anticipating a cosmic microdispersion BUT THEN the face plate flipped back and resumed its normal operation. From the city's perspective there was never an issue other than a slight fuzz on an FM radio station that was suddenly fixed.
